217 Farms Aided by Work of Alton CCC Camp South of Hope

Work Completed or Underway on 41,556 Acres, Says Superintendent

PROGRAM ON SUNDAY

Alton Camp Has One of Highest Ratings in Arkansas

The sixth birthday of the Civilian Conservation Corps will be observed Sunday, April 16, by the Hope CCC camp, six miles south of Hope, and by hundreds of other CCC camps in the United States.

The Hope Camp's part of the gigantic observance in commemoration of six years of major achievement in the field of conservation will include an "open house" to be held April 16 beginning at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. The public has been invited by the officials and by the enrollees.

Soil Work Stressed

The Hope camp is one of twelve camps in Arkansas engaged in applying complete and coordinated programs of soil and water conservation on farms under the supervision of the Soil Conservation Service. This camp has worked or is working on 217 farms comprising a total of 41,556 acres situated within a radius of 20 miles from the camp.

R. C. Eillon, Camp Superintendent

R. C. Eillon, camp superintendent, and Lt. Oliver C. Harvey, company commander, said that the "open house" celebration will include a camp entertainment program beginning at 2 p. m. followed by addresses by W. S. Aldrich, U. S. Senator from the Washington, D. C. office of the Soil Conservation Service; E. T. Nagle, regional administrator, of Fort Worth, Texas; Glen Riddell, state coordinator of the Soil Conservation Service, Little Rock; A. J. Moses of the Arkansas State Welfare department and Ed Bethune, supervisor of selection CCC.

Music for the Entertainment Will Be Furnished by the Hope High School Band

Visitors attending the anniversary program will have an opportunity of seeing one of the finest camps in this state, if not one of the finest in the country.

Although not one of the oldest camps in the state, it has made rapid improvements since its establishment in 1935. Since this is a typical CCC camp, the public will have an opportunity to survey the living conditions of members of Uncle Sam's conservation army.

Camp Has High Rating

They will be shown the hospital, educational, welfare and other facilities which are provided for the boys who are selected for service with the Civilian Conservation Corps.

They will have an opportunity to talk with the enrollees in regard to all phases of camp life. Members of the technical staff will be on hand to explain the workings of the soil conservation service which is doing much to conserve the soil of the state and surrounding countries.

This will afford an opportunity for the people to get first hand information on the workings of an organization which has won the confidence of a majority of the people throughout the country because of its conservation, character, citizenship, health and educational training.

Camp officials are desirous of having the public attend this program.

Kiwanis Club to Visit in Blevins

First of Goodwill Tours Will Be Held This Friday Night

The Hope Kiwanis club will hold the first of a series of goodwill tours of the Blevins school county at the Blevins High School auditorium Friday night, April 14.

The Hope club was invited by residents of the Blevins community and arrangements were made by A. B. Wetherington, superintendent of schools.

The program, beginning at 7:45 p. m., will consist of several musical numbers by the Kiwanis quartet and the Ogburn orchestra of Hope.

Featured speakers will be John P. Cox and Senator James H. Pilkinton, according to G. T. Cross, president of the club, who will also act as master of ceremonies.

The welcome address will be delivered by M. L. Nelson, president of the Blevins school board. Members of the Kiwanis club will be introduced.

Purpose of these visits to various communities of the state is to bring about closer relationship and cooperation between business men and citizens of Hope and the rural communities.

Invitations have been received by the club to visit Spring Hill, Ozark, Potosi and Rostown. The schedule for later visits is being arranged.

The opening goodwill program at Blevins Friday night will last about an hour and a half. Members of the club are urged to assemble at the Hotel Barlow at 6:30 o'clock, and will arrive at Blevins a few minutes ahead of time for the program.

Hope Men to Sell Burglar Alarms

J. E. Bearden, F. L. Downs Have Southwestern Territory

J. E. Bearden and F. L. Downs of Hope Thursday completed arrangements to install a burglar alarm system which has been meeting with unusual success for the past seven years.

Operating under franchise, Mr. Bearden and Mr. Downs now are permitted to sell and install the burglar alarm systems under U. S. patent No. 2,075,147, they announced.

The systems are said to be practically burglar-proof and many cases are reported where burglaries have been prevented where the alarm systems had been installed.

Mr. Bearden stated that a recent burglary and fire in this county may have been avoided if one of these alarm systems had been installed.

Headquarters of the business will be in Hope, but the territory acquired will include the states of Arkansas, Louisiana, Oklahoma and Texas.

Installation of the alarms will be under the supervision of V. P. Upton who has been connected with the inventor for several years.

"The life of the building is the life of the burglar system. It eliminates burglar and reduces fire hazards. The system can be installed in any type of building," Mr. Bearden said.

New Library for Hope Is Proposed

Possible Aid From Carnegie Foundation Is Being Investigated

Senator James H. Pilkinton said Thursday that he was investigating to see if it was possible for Hope to secure a new public library building through the help of the Carnegie Foundation.

"Talbot Fields, Jr., was the first to call my attention to the fact that several cities in Arkansas had received aid through the Carnegie Foundation which had enabled them to construct modern public library buildings," Mr. Pilkinton said.

"The public library at Rogers, Ark., I understand, was built through the help of this organization. Hope needs a nice library building and we are now investigating to see if one can be built here through the financial aid of the Carnegie Foundation."

Mr. Pilkinton said that the prospects were "most encouraging" if the information he has is correct.

To Pay Farmers Planting Nothing

Benefits Depend on Keeping Production Within Allotments

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The Agriculture Department prepared regulations Wednesday which would permit farmers to collect benefit payments under the farm law even though they planted no crops. The regulations will be based on an amendment to the 1937 farm act signed by President Roosevelt Monday.

The amendment provides that a cotton, corn, wheat, rice or tobacco farmer will be eligible for full benefit payment on the normal production of his acreage allotment, provided he plant within that allotment. Officials said a farmer with an allotment who planted no crops would be eligible for the full amount.

Previously, a farmer who planted less than 80 per cent of his acreage allotment got benefit payments on the normal production of acreage equal to 125 per cent of what he actually planted. Thus a farmer with an allotment of 100 acres who planted only 50 acres received the benefit payments on the normal production of 62.5 acres. Now he will receive payments of the full 100 acres.

AAA officials said they expected few, if any, farmers to quit planting because of the change in the law. It was said that farmers could not subsidize on benefit payments alone. Also, it was asserted that if a farmer stopped planting, he might eventually be deprived of benefit payments altogether because a farmer's acreage allotment is based on his plantings during the five years before the allotment is made.

Coldest April in History in North

And the Cold Blast Reaches Deep Into Heart of the South

CLEVELAND, Ohio — (AP) — Winter weather prevailed from Maine to the Rockies and southward into Kentucky Wednesday. Some places had the coldest April 12 in history. A blizzard struck Cleveland. Snow fell in 15 states.

Communities in Wisconsin, Minnesota and South Dakota had temperatures down to eight degrees. The weather was freezing in parts of New England, Pennsylvania and New York, but New York city's low was 38.

Four inches of snow fell in central Vermont, bringing total depth in mountain areas to four feet. Two additional inches in northern New Hampshire made the average depth 30 inches. From one to two inches fell Wednesday in northern Ohio and Michigan.

Poland Orders Families of Her Envoys Home From Germany

LONDON, Eng. — (AP) — Great Britain and France pledged "all the support in their power" Thursday to Greece and Rumania if their independence is threatened.

This action, announced in the House of Commons in an emergency session, widened the anti-aggression front started by the two powers with a similar pledge to Poland after Germany absorbed Memel.

Prime Minister Chamberlain made it plain that Turkey was included indirectly in the new guarantees, stating that assurances to Greece and Rumania were being communicated "especially to Turkey, whose relations with the Greek government are well known."

Chamberlain declared anti-aggression consultations with Soviet Russia are continuing.

Premier Daladier of France made a similar statement in Paris, and announced his nation had reinforced its defenses "to guarantee the frontiers of France and its empire against any surprise."

Chamberlain gave Mussolini one more chance for friendship with Britain by declaring he looked to the Italian government for "practical evidence" that it shared his desire for good relations.

New Thrust at Poland

WARSAW, Poland — (AP) — The Polish foreign office was reported Thursday to have instructed officials of the Polish embassy and consular offices in Germany to send their families home.

Nazis Blame Democracies

BERLIN, Germany — (AP) — Official German took the position Thursday if the world should be plunged into war the fault would lie with the democracies—for not heeding Reichsfuehrer Hitler's "pleas" for peace and his warnings against "international war-mongers."

The United States was presented as an example of a nation which fosters "war psychosis."

These views were expressed as Germany's newspaper war assumed an unprecedented vehemence and as new demands were raised for colonial territory.

Nazi Demands Renewed?

WARSAW, Poland — (AP) — Reports circulated Wednesday night that Germany had renewed demands upon Poland for Danzig and a strip of the Polish Corridor. This indicated, it was said, that Germany hoped to bluff Poland into a stand of neutrality in the present world situation or that the Nazis were prepared to bargain if Poland would loosen her defense ties with Britain and France.

The demands for Danzig, for a motor road across the Polish corridor under German sovereignty and for cessation of Bogumim, important rail junction, previously were made and were refused.

The foreign office denied Wednesday night they had been repeated. Diplomatic sources and other quarters persisted in discussing the reported demands, however, said to have been brought from Berlin by the Polish ambassador.

Remember the Friend of Freedom

More than at any time in recent years, the United States has reason to turn eagerly this spring to observance of the birth of Thomas Jefferson. This American colossus, whose giant shadow still falls across the whole democratic world, was born April 13, 1743, almost 200 years ago.

It is the custom on such occasions to search the works of such a worthy, find an apt quotation that seems to bear out the particular course the writer himself favors, and thus give the great man's benediction on his natal day to some course of modern conduct.

In the writings of his 33 years, his speeches, letters, and books, apparent Jeffersonian authority can be found for almost anything. It is a dangerous practice to quote him thus. Nobody can say with much certainty what Jefferson or any long-dead man would do if confronted by today's world.

What we can do, and what we ought to do on an occasion like this birth anniversary, is to read the whole life of the man, try to understand its spirit, and thus we can know for certain about Jefferson if he were here today: he would stand for freedom and against tyranny.

Typical of his matured views was this flaming sentence, written 26 years before his death: "I have sworn upon the altar of God eternal hostility against every form of tyranny over the mind of man."

We know that he lived his life in a continual running fight for freedom, of creed, of government, of speech, and of thought.

And when he came to die, we know that he wrote the words to be graven on his own tombstone. Though he had been lawyer, inventor, writer, governor of his state, congressman, minister to France, secretary of state, and twice the choice of his people to be their President, Jefferson set down these words as his own memorial:

"Here was buried Thomas Jefferson, author of the Declaration of American Independence, of the statute of Virginia for religious freedom, and Father of the University of Virginia."

These things of his long, varied, fruitful career, Thomas Jefferson valued most; that he had fought and won in battles for freedom, political freedom for his country, freedom of religious belief in his state, and freedom of the mind as represented by the founding of a great university.

He knew that freedom is never static, never kept, even when once gained, without never-ending struggle.

That struggle, no less than his own victories in it, Thomas Jefferson bequeathed to us.

Treatment and Surgery Used to Cure Enlarged, Infected Prostate Gland

Prominent these days in the public prints is the tissue found in the male, but not in the female, known as the prostate gland.

The average man seldom knows until he has a prostate gland until he has passed the age of 50 years. During early life its only function seems to be the supplying of a small amount of secretion which passes from the body with the secretion of the sex glands.

After middle age there frequently occurs an enlargement or overgrowth of these tissues which is chiefly harmful because of its interference with the elimination of the fluid that passes from the kidneys into the bladder.

In addition to the simple enlargements of the prostate which occur after middle age, the gland sometimes produces disturbances by becoming infected. Like many another tissue in the human body it may develop cancer.

Thus some experts in urology, which is the specialty devoted to diseases of this type, assert that one out of every two cases of sudden enlargement of the prostate late in life is cancerous.

When the prostate gland becomes sufficiently enlarged it may press upon or obstruct the tube through which the fluid passes, preventing a complete emptying of the bladder. There is always the possibility that this residual fluid may become the medium for the growth of germs.

When the germs grow and develop their toxins the tissues become inflamed. Under such circumstances, the inflammation may be relieved if the tissues are given opportunity to rest by putting the patient to bed, by releasing the fluid through passing a soft rubber directly into the bladder itself, by washing out the bladder with suitable solutions and by giving medicaments which pass into the urine and exert an antiseptic influence.

In many instances there may be some reduction in the enlargement of the prostate gland and thus an operative procedure may be avoided. If, however, such simple measures do not bring about relief, an operative procedure may be necessary.

tube is passed upward through the organs of excretion until it reaches the area of the prostate.

Then bit by bit, portions of the prostate are removed through this tube, and it is possible in many instances to remove the major portion of the enlargement.

In other instances operations are done directly on the gland, approaching it from above through the bladder or from below through the tissues that lie between the legs.

With the great improvements that have taken place in modern surgical technique, these operative procedures are successful in the majority of cases, because a competent, careful surgeon will not operate on patients when they are not considered to be good surgical risks.

Fortunately there are now many able urologists accessible to most of the United States capable of doing good work of this kind.

Take Applications for Peach Workers

Harvest of Early Crop Will Begin About June 15

According to the present out-look in the Highland peach area there will be a big demand for peach pickers, graders and packers during the coming harvest. The harvest of early peaches should get under way about June 15 and the Elberta crop should follow between July 1 and July 15.

Male labor is used entirely as pickers. Female labor is used only in the grading and packing sheds. Packers and graders must have some experience in this line of work but any male able and willing to do the work properly can learn to pick peaches in a very short time.

All persons who are interested in this work should call at the Hope office of the Arkansas State Employment Service, 201 East Second street, and leave their application.

This office will have information at all times regarding harvesting activities and will be able to direct the workers to orchards where they can secure work.

Every year should have its mile post cake, with candles burning to light the way to many happy returns of the day. Thus one has glistening frosting and slices of Brazil nuts for good wishes.

seven minutes or until frosting will stand in peaks. Remove from over water and beat until slightly cool and thick.

Spread between layers of cake. Sprinkle each layer generously with chopped nuts. First sides and top of cake. Decorate top with thinly-sliced Brazil nuts. Decorate sides of cake with nuts, sliced lengthwise, arranged in petal design.

Peach and Raspberry Mold

Roast Chicken Is a Bird of a Welcome for Your Company

By MRS. GAYNOR MADDOX
NEA Service Staff Writer

Roast chicken stands for company dinner. Yet a plump and tender bird is only half the delectable story. Preparation is the other half. Do you know that some experts advise against the use of thick gravies and grease? Billy, the Oysterman, a master of arts in the lore of all-American food, says grease dries the meat and rich gravies kill the subtle roast chicken flavor. He offers this simple recipe.

Billy's Roast Chicken
(Serves 4)

One 3½ pound roaster, salt and pepper, butter, 1 carrot, 1 onion, 2 stalks celery, 1 cup water.
Singe and wash chicken. Dry. Season inside and out with salt and pepper.

Coat the chicken with butter. Cut carrot, onion and celery in slices and lay these slices on bottom of roasting pan. Place chicken, breast side up, on this bed of vegetables.

Four 1 cup water into pan. Roast for 1½ hours in moderate oven (350 degrees F.). When the chicken is done, strain sauce from pan and serve separately with chicken.

If you stuff the bird, allow an extra half hour for roasting. To carve, first sever thigh from chicken, then sever wing on one side before slicing the breast. Serve a slice of breast and a slice of dark meat or part of thigh, leg or wing to each person.

Make a stuffing made of chestnuts or of bacon and egg if you must stuff or use this recipe.

Herb and Stuffing
(3 cups)

Three cups toasted bread crumbs, ½ teaspoon each of chopped celery leaves, parsley, marjoram and thyme, 1 small onion minced, ¼ teaspoon grated lemon rind, salt, pepper, 1 tablespoon butter, 1 egg.

Mix all together and stuff chicken. If possible, stuff at least 3 hours before roasting to permit flavor to be absorbed by bird.

Carve your roast chicken correctly and it will taste and look better. Cut off wing and thigh first, then slice breast. Repeat on other side.

RAISING A FAMILY

By Olive Roberts Barton

Help the "Cowardly" Child to Say "Pleased to Meet You" to His Worst Bug-a-boos

The child who is raised in the shadow of skyscrapers may be afraid of a bee. The country child, accustomed to bees and even cross bulls, may fear his first view of city traffic. Our fears are based largely upon the unusual, and our first experience with the unknown.

Let us stop a moment on this world "unknown." This is the basis of all obsessive fears born in the human being. Where knowledge or reason cease to give footing, then imagination fills up the rest. We fear many things, but the vague dreads that crowd the heart are almost beyond analysis.

The child said to be a "born coward" is merely one who gives himself over to these monsters of the imagination. He cannot help it. And knowing that he cannot help it, he will try to cover it up so as to fool everybody. He may do this, too, very successfully, but he will never fool himself.

He will get out of trying new tasks, by excuses of some sort. Actually he knows that he is afraid of something, perhaps failure, or of his secret premonition of danger.

"That's an old ball and I don't want it," he may tell his gang, knowing full well that he dare not climb over the wall. Behind that wall there may be a dog, a man or merely a lot of strange figures in stone. In his mind he may have pictured the secret garden from early babyhood as filled with monsters.

If one could take him into the garden, hand-in-hand, through a gate opened cordially to the visitor, he might see roses and lily pools, patches of sunlight and friendly trees. But the gate will have to be in the wall he cows are served by 19 outstanding redigreed bulls. Artificial breeding, dairymen say, multiplies many times the usefulness of great sires, puts milking cows in barn-space formerly occupied by inferior bulls and eliminates the possibility of spreading disease. The program started in New Jersey with the cooperation of Alice—a six-year old bull officially registered as N. J. E. S. Sir Mutual Oremby Jewel Alice, father of 17 daughters with a more milk-more butterfat complex.

Artificial insemination was first worked-on dogs—in the late 1700's by an Italian scientist, Lazzaro Spallanzani, but the idea didn't take hold then. Now it is being used in Denmark, Great Britain, Russia and other European countries and is spreading in the United States.

In New Jersey three dairy associations are breeding cattle by means of artificial insemination and a fourth association is being formed. Similar organizations have been started in New York state. Another is getting under way in Massachusetts and Connecticut.

The New Jersey activity has sprung up within a year. It took on a very practical aspect a few weeks ago when Shawmut Sully Queen wandered around a Hunterdon County barnyard, the first test-tube calf born in the nation's first cooperative cattle-breeding unit. The 400 members of the present New Jersey associations have entered 4,800 cows in a breeding project. These

Bees Buzzing Menacingly With Additional Power at the Plate

By HARRY GRAYSON
NEA Service Sports Editor

BRADENTON, Fla.—Casey Stengel watched Edward R. Miller go far to his right, whirl, and throw a runner out at first base.

"The first thing we know," remarked the inimitable manager of the Boston Bees, "they'll think we're professionals."

Stengel is the Pittsburgh product for whom old Bob Quinn paid the Yankees $50,000 in cash and players.

Ed Barrow and George Weiss, directors of the Yankee organization, debated a long while before letting Miller go, but their husky Kansas City shortstop could not be sent out again and, with the accomplished Frank Crosetti still very much alive and kicking, there was no room for him on the parent club.

Will Anthony F. Cuccinello, Miller gave the Boston Nationals a highly feared second basing combination.

"The Bees have plenty of seasoned pitchers and excellent catching."

"Clubs have gone a long way or less than that, especially in the National League."

Made Good Showing Despite Power Shortage

William Boyd McKeechie was hailed as something of a miracle man and given a fat contract and bonus in Cincinnati when he brought the Bees in fifth in 1937.

They said no other manager could do as well with what Bill McKeechie had.

But Stengel brought the same outfit in fifth and above 500 last season, and neither Jim Turner nor Lou Fette came close to winning the 20 games apiece which they turned in for McKeechie.

Stengel has strengthened his attack with Al Simmons, Jim Outlaw, Buddy Hackett, Miller, and Henry Majeski.

Simmons, shipped by Washington for the price of an obscure minor leaguer after batting .302 and driving in 95 runs, looks better than he has for several springs.

Johnny Dickshot, who appeared to be a rare prospect in the International League before he got to taking too many strikes in Pittsburgh, lively is being given an opportunity to make good in center field, but indications are that the job will go to Jimmy Outlaw, who will appear in 70 runs in hitting .330 for Syracuse.

Miller's Great Prospect at Shortstop

Buddy Hackett hit .293 for Brooklyn. If he doesn't play first base, the New York lad at least will give Elbert Fletcher the surge he apparently requires.

Miller hit .290 and batted in 80 runs for Kansas City. A righthand smacker, well built and weighing 170 pounds, he looks like the perfect long way occasionally, and because of his superlative shortstopping will be highly satisfactory if he bats .260.

Ty Cobb Got Chance Merely by Asking for It Says Croke, One-Time Owner

Former Owner of Augusta Baseball Club Tells How Cobb Walked in and Asked for Chance With His Club in 1904

By HARRY GRAYSON
NEA Service Sports Editor

AUGUSTA — Tyrus Raymond Cobb, right when he broke in with Augusta in 1904, but they never laughed at the man who was too stand alone as the fiery genius of baseball.

At no time did Ty Cobb make Babe Herman look like Fred Astaire, chasing a fly.

The Augusta owners did not believe they were putting anything over on the Detroit club when they sold Bushor Cobb for $750.

William J. Croke explodes tales which repeatedly have been told of Cobb's early days in the South Atlantic League.

Bill Croke should know. He is the man who peddled the greatest ball player of all time to Bill Armour, then manager of the Tigers, July 4, 1905.

I bumped into Bill Croke and Thomas Payton Stallings, brother to the relates Croke. Moyston is situated in town game in Augusta between the Red Sox and Reds.

Walked in and Asked for Chance

"Cobb had come from the little town of Royston the year before relates Croke. "Rayston is situated in the mountain section 100 miles north of Atlanta. Nobody sent for the 18-year-old Cobb. Nobody recommended him. He just walked up and asked for a chance."

"We had a fair sort of a left-hand pitcher from Alpharetta, which is not far from Royston. His name was Nap Rucker.

"Naturally, Cobb polished himself up as he went along, but while with Augusta in 1904 and '05 he was the same daring and aggressive player who held or tied 40 major league records, 36 of which still stand."

"Cobb was a real farmer boy, though. I remember our opening game in Savannah in 1905. . . 3,000 paid admissions big crowd in those days. . . not had in St. Louis right now, come to think of it. We beat Savannah, 2-1, and their only run was scored on a hit past Ty Cobb in center field."

"I recall that run because Ty was creating popcorn when the ball was hit."

Cobb, Rucker Had Great Appetites

"The hot-headed Cobb liked his own way from the outset. . . would fight for it. On the road, I had to feed the rest of the player before Cobb and Rucker got into the dining room. If I hadn't the others would have gone hungry."

"We knew we had an outstanding player in Ty and so did Detroit. Bill Armour saw Cobb the year before he bought him. We worked with Detroit. The Tigers sent us Eddie Cicotte—another young man who could pitch a bit—an option. That old Augusta club of mine wasn't at all bad."

"We were in a good league and Shoeless Joe Jackson wasn't the only player in it who was annoyed by baseball shoes. Why we had to hold up one game while Nap Rucker ran to the house where he was living to get a pair of old tennis shoes in which he pitched more comfortably than in newfangled baseball shoes."

"I had a perfectly good reason for selling Cobb to Detroit for $750, which was a good price in those days, by the way. Augusta previously had been in the Southern Association. The Sally League was new. Few major league clubs paid any attention to it, and the Southern Association of higher classification could at the time draft

Cobb from us for $350.

Cobb Almost Went For Meisly $25

"If I hadn't canceled the deal, Cobb would have been sold for $25 in 1905. There was friction between Andy Roth, our catcher-manager, and George Leity, an old outfielder who put Cobb on the right track in the batting line."

"Young Cobb appreciated Leity's tips. They became pals. Leity was as ambitious to manage the club as Cobb was to learn. Cobb's temper soon had him jawing back and forth with Roth, who finally informed me he had sold Ty to Ed Ashenbach, the Charleston manager, for $25. I broke Charley Padlock's best time in calling that one off."

"We paid Ty Cobb $30 a month in the spring of 1905, raised him to $125 when he got going so good."

Cobb married an Augusta girl and made his home here until shortly after he retired from baseball in 1928, when he moved to California.

Tyrus Raymond Cobb, Jr., red-headed but otherwise the dead s' pit of his famous father, is a medical student at the University of Georgia School of Medicine here.

Young Ty plays tennis and golf. He doesn't care a thing about baseball.

Southern League Will Open Friday

Atlanta Team Is Picked to Repeat as League Champions

ATLANTA (AP)—The Southern Association, one of the oldest of the organized leagues, starts Friday on a 1939 marathon heralded as a banner race from a standpoint of interest and competition.

In the No. 1 post position at the barrier are the Atlanta Crackers, 1938 champions and Dixie series winners who have been established as the pre-campaign choice over the seven other clubs that make up the field.

The "experts" have figured the keenest competition to the Crackers' efforts to defend successfully the championship won easily a year ago will come from Nashville's Vols, the Birmingham Barons and Chattanooga's Lookouts.

Opening Games

Opening day games Friday afternoon will find Atlanta entertaining the Chattanooga club. Little Rock will appear at Memphis, Knoxville goes to Nashville and Birmingham performs at New Orleans.

Wholesale changes in managerial and player ranks have occurred since last fall.

Only Atlanta, where youthful Paul Richards directed the Crackers to a flag-winning campaign in his first year as manager, and Knoxville, whose Smokeries finished on the bottom under the guidance of Neil Caldwell, have retained their skipper.

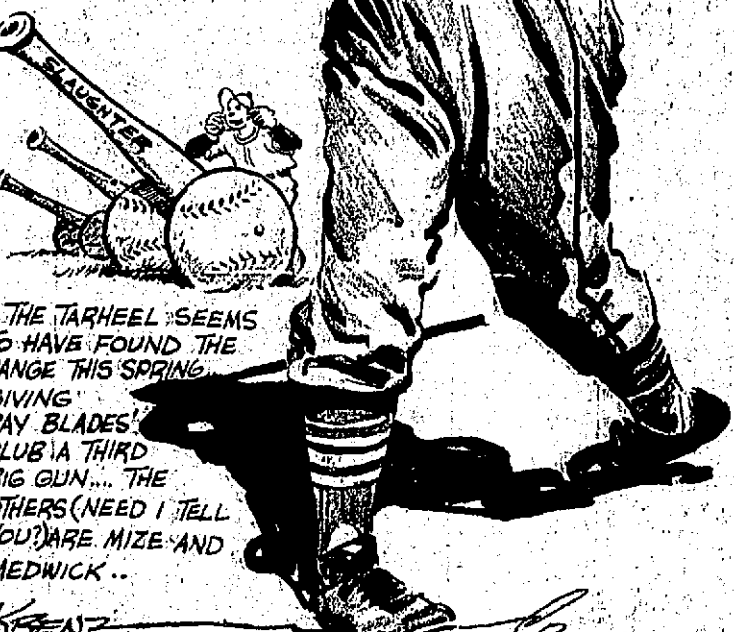

Nashville drew Larry Gilbert away from the New Orleans Pelicans after

When the barrier is lifted George Toporcer will be directing the Little Rock Travelers, Roger Peckinpaugh will be holding the reins at New Orleans, Hazen (Ki-Ki) Cuyler and Frank Brazil will be dictating at Chattanooga and Memphis, respectively.

Crackers' Ready

Manager Richards believes his club is "set" for the campaign. He says his lineup now is stronger than the one that started the 1938 season, but hardly as formidable as the array that won the pennant. The Crackers will miss Fitchers Tom Sunkel and Bill Beck-

Bees Are Ready

LITTLE ROCK — (AP) — Manager George Toporcer brought his Little Rock Travelers squad down to the 19-player limit Wednesday when he optioned Fred Walters, second string catcher last year, to Scranton of the Eastern League.

Toporcer retained Ben Ferraroli with Clarksville in the Cotton States last year, in preference to the former Mississippi State College athlete as an understudy to the veteran Bucky Crouse.

The Travelers will open the season Friday without the services of the veteran Kola Sharpe, righthanded hurler. Sharpe was called to his Nashville, Tenn., home by the death of his father. He will return in time to participate in the opener here next Tuesday against New Orleans.

Pennies From Heaven Fall on Markerts, 'Family' of 99 Who Live by Faith Alone

By NEA Service
CRYSTAL BEACH, Fla. — Answering faith that "the Lord will provide" was the only resource they had when they took on the rearing of 85 children.

It has proved enough. The family of 83 children and 16 adults have come again and again to the point of need, but always at the last moment their faith has been vindicated. What they needed always came to them.

The Markerts were missionaries in the Canary Islands 16 years ago. Believing that language difficulties left them unprepared for their work, they returned to Florida to start a school to train missionaries.

Without money, but with boundless faith, they rented a 40-room house in Tampa. In the first week of their residence, a widow brought them her 12-year-old "incorrigible boy." The Markerts had no accommodations for even the first boy, so they told the woman to return in three days.

Gifts — Material and Human

Two days later two mattresses arrived from an unknown donor. When the widow returned the next day she was told that if the boy would sleep on the floor they would take him in.

That afternoon, when Markert was paying an installment on his furniture, the merchant offered him 20 old beds he had stored away. The furnishing of the home was begun in earnest. Gradually the family grew. Most of them came to what soon became Faith Mission before they were three. Today the 83 children range from infancy to 16 years.

Each child retain its own name, but is brought up to look on the Markerts as its parents. Their training is non-sectarian, but based on the Bible.

After five years in Tampa, the Markerts moved to what used to be a hotel here, with 30 rooms and an acre and a half of land looking out on the Gulf of Mexico. It was then leased for $100 a month.

Even then the Markerts hadn't any money. But they had faith, and money, food clothing and other necessities continued to appear when most needed. Haphazard contributions by kindly people have maintained the institution without formal sponsors, endowment, or any organized form of assistance.

None of the 16 assistants at the mission get any salary. Five of them are teachers, the rest are all driven by a desire to serve. The county supplied a school building and an old school bus.

Music and Meals
Every child learns to play a musical instrument, all donated. The children have made up a "little symphony" orchestra which has played before as many as 7000 people.

Timely contributions have made it possible to buy the present home, debt-free.

Yet there have been times when the Markerts literally didn't know where the next meal was coming from.

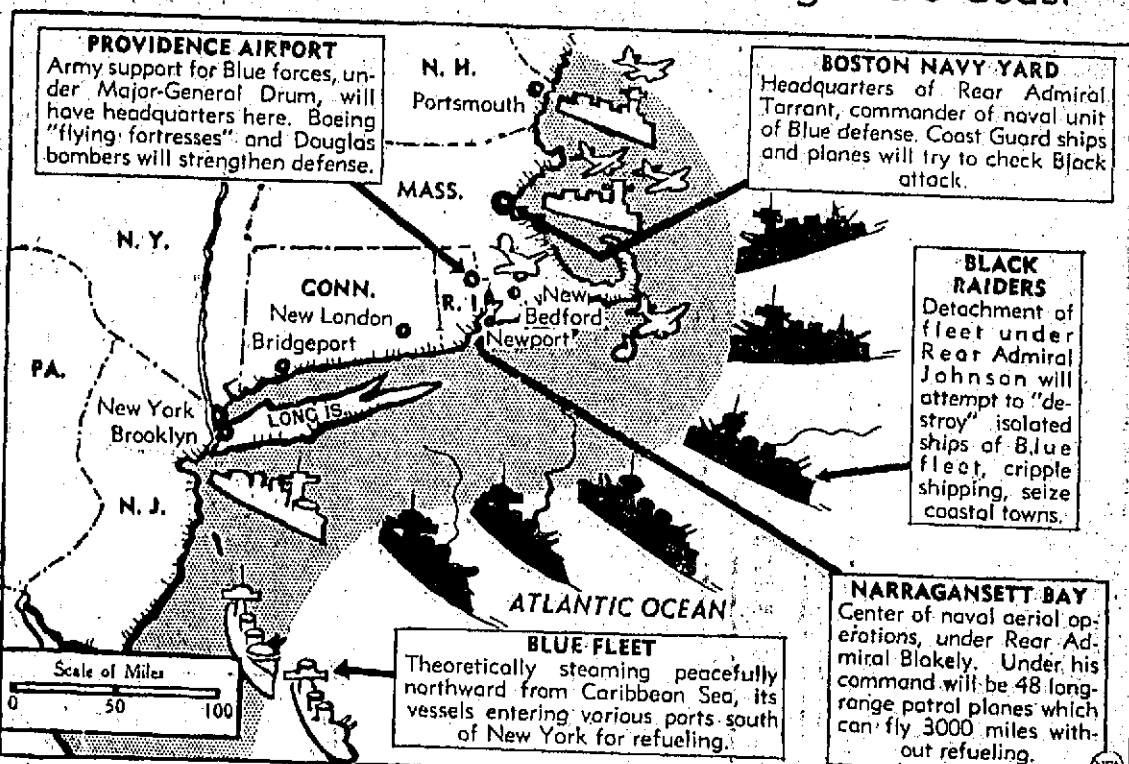

"One Saturday," they relate, "there was nothing on the pantry shelves for the evening meal. But before the time-setting time a motorist whom we had never seen before drove up with $35 worth of groceries."

"Some wonderful things have happened. Last fall all the children needed shoes very badly, but we had no money for them. Then a letter arrived from a lady in Tampa. She had bought a pair of shoes each for 81 of our children."

"We were behind on our January bills, but on the 27th, a man and his daughter visited us and left a check for $250 which cleared us for the month."

"The Lord will provide," say the Markerts.

STORIES IN STAMPS

What Was the Toll Of Sherman's March?

SEVENTY-FIVE years after Gen. William Tecumseh Sherman undertook his famous march through the south to break the backbone of the Confederacy, the historians are still arguing over the exact toll of this expedition.

Sherman estimated the damage in Savannah alone at $100,000,000, but his figures appear to be a rough guess. Generally, it is believed that Sherman cost the south $200,000,000 in that march which leveled towns and cities, mopped up military supplies on every hand.

Sherman set out to make the south howl and he did just that. So he made his name a symbol of hate. He wrote to his wife, for instance, at the end of May, 1864, that he knew the country swarmed with thousands "who would shoot me and thank their God they had slain a monster." Yet, Sherman insisted, he had tried to be more kindly disposed to the south than any other general.

This was war, he reminded his critics, after all. So he had marched with his 60,000 men to cut off the source of supplies to the Confederates, to make the south feel the real weight of the battle. If that meant destruction, well, history could make the most of it.

Sherman is shown above on a U. S. stamp of the series of 1894, 8-cent lilac, enlarged. (Copyright, 1939, NEA Service, Inc.)

The Top Star for Tidiness Is the Neat Anita Louise

So you think all screen stars are models of neat grooming, eh? Well, Marian Young, noted expert on the subject, went to Hollywood and found the opposite true. There are reasons, and she reports them, and tells why Hollywood itself agrees that Anita Louise is No. 1 example of that rare person—the well-groomed woman.

By MARIAN YOUNG
NEA Home Page Editor
HOLLYWOOD—In Hollywood, where beauty, charm, sex appeal and personality are the rule rather than the exception, blonde Anita Louise stands out like a brilliant jewel.

The majority of women in the film capital have caught the summer resort atmosphere which prevails here, and, when not actually before the camera, wear unpressed slacks and shirts day in and day out. Their long bobs, unhampered by hats or even ribbon hands, fluttering in the breeze. Gloves are completely missing.

After working weeks on a picture, during which she has had her hair washed and set every morning and has worn thick makeup continuously, the average screen star is pretty weary of grooming and makeup routines. She wants a vacation—a vacation from having to worry about her appearance.

But the slender, attractive Anita Louise is among the few who never let down. Nobody in Hollywood ever remembers seeing "delicately lovely" Miss Louise looking anything except delicately lovely.

"She wears street costumes on the street, complete with hats, bags and other appropriate accessories. She wouldn't think of wearing a street coat, however elegant, over an evening gown. Her hair is always freshly made up. Her hair is soft, and shining with cleanliness. When she does wear 'active' sports clothes—such as shorts or slacks—for driving between her home and the studio, they are well-tailored ones, neatly pressed."

"I clean my face and apply fresh cosmetics many times a day," says Miss Louise. "I think that the habit of putting fresh makeup on over old not only mars a girl's appearance at the time, but eventually will ruin her complexion."

"I wash my face and neck with soap and water, night and morning, cleansing with cream between times. At night, after the soap and water cleansing, I smooth on a bit of night cream. That's all I ever do. I never have facials and I seldom wear rouge."

Anita Louise adheres rigorously to the rules for good grooming laid down by experts and followed everywhere by women who are truly smart. She has a warm, cozy bath every night of her life, a lukewarm shower every morning. She uses an anti-perspirant regularly, keeps underarms and legs free from superfluous hair. Her stockings are rinsed out the moment she takes them off. She puts on fresh underwear every morning, brushes her hair as well as her shoes.

"Next to cleanliness, knowing how to put your clothes on is the important step toward achievement of that fresh-as-a-daisy look," Miss Louise continued. "For instance, if a girl is turned inside out as you pull it on, then held by the bottom edge, and pulled back down into place there'll be no bluges of flesh around the middle of the figure."

"If you roll stockings up instead of pulling them up, then fasten garters properly, stocking seams just won't get twisted during the day. When you put on a dress—any dress—make believe that it is a new one and that you are wearing it for the first time. This really helps. If you slide carelessly into your clothes, you won't look trim from head to foot when you have finished dressing."

"Well," remarked a married man after examining his friend's new flat, "I wish I could afford a place like this."

"Yes," said his friend, "you married men have better halves, but we bachelors usually have better quarters."

STORIES IN STAMPS

Fur Traders Opened Canada's Wheat Country

THE prairie Canada the British king and queen will see this year was a barren wilderness just 100 years ago when the first white explorer in the west, La Verendrye, camped one night at the junction of the Assiniboine and Red rivers. But La Verendrye saw the spot might prove important in the future, so he erected a crude fort.

It was not used, however, for the fur traders were yet to come. They arrived in a pack, some 68 years later. Two packs, in fact: the Nor'-Westers of Montreal and the Hudson's Bay company. Immediately there was a bitter contest for the control of the west and both companies built outposts, Fort Gibraltar and Fort Douglas. Then came Lord Selkirk, aggressive head of the Hudson's Bay company. It was Selkirk who saw that the country opened by the fur traders was a farming country as well, so from 1811-15 he brought hundreds of settlers into the fertile Red river valley from his native Scotland. And, despite all manner of hardship and danger, they stuck it out.

The fur traders, meantime, carried their struggle to a bloody end that brought the merger of the Nor'-Westers and the Hudson's Bay companies. With peace, Fort Gibraltar was renamed Fort Garry. It became a vital trading post and settlers' depot. Meanwhile, a settlement was growing up outside the fort itself and the pioneers called it Winnipeg, from the Cree words, Win, meaning murky, and Nipig, water.

Pitcher Says Cubs Traded Out of Flag

Tex Carlton Maintains the Giants Got Best of Five-Man Deal

By HARRY GRAYSON
NEA Service Sports Editor
OCALA, Fla. — A long distance slant on the Chicago Cubs from one closely associated with them until recently:

Tex Carlton pitched for the Philip K. Wrigley for four campaigns. He came to them from the Cardinals. Now he's training with the Milwaukee Brewers here.

"Gaby Hartnett traded the Cubs out of the National League pennant and the Giants into it when he gave Bill Jurgens, Frank Demaree and Ken O'Dea for Dick Bartell, Hank Leiber and Gus Mancuso," says Carlton.

"I wouldn't trade Jurgens for the other five involved. Bartell, sound, never was half the shotstop Jurgens is, and here he is in a hospital with a rheumatic ankle. Demaree can't be counted on on what was for him a poor season. He's still a great hitter and a team ink."

"O'Dea is young, a splendid hitter and has a strong arm. He has a chance of developing into a great catcher." Carlton disagrees with Jimmy Dykes and Bucky Harris, who say Zeke Bonura can't field.

Zeke Handled Ball Plenty. "And I'm not being fooled by the averages," he explains. "All I have to do is look at the assists and putouts. Bonura not only led the American League first basemen twice in fielding, but he handled the most chances."

"And he'll hit in 130 or more runs playing half his games in the Polo Grounds."

"If the Giants get any kind of pitching from Hubbell and Schumacher, they're a leadpipe cinch."

Carlton, who came out of Texas Christian University, tells you that he'll be back in the majors two months after the season starts.

"The Cubs use me now," he insists. "The Cubs got waivers on me, yes, but the Cardinals could get waivers on Joe Mednick if they wanted to. My trouble was that the Cubs management thought I was 'Jakin' when arthritis had my arm hurting like a toothache practically the entire season."

"I admit that I pitched only four games for the Cubs in 1938, but I won 10, which was more than I lost, and since when have big league clubs been firing pitchers for winning more than they lost?"

Grimm's Good Nature.

Cost Him Job

"I intended to leave, and had no intention of reporting to Milwaukee until the Texas Christian coaching staff asked me to assist with the Horned Frogs at home. I threw hard purposely just to see if my arm would hurt. It didn't, so here I am."

Carlton says Charley Grimm's good nature got the best of him in managing the Cubs.

"When we'd lose, Charley would say: 'That's okay, fellows. Forget it. We'll get 'em tomorrow.' He kept saying this until anything else he'd say."

now gym instructor on the American Republics lines

But he takes four months off each year and returns to the Broadway beat. "The Kid" is not averse to teaching a pugilistic trick to a Fredric March or a Walter Huston or a Jimmy Cagney right in Shubert Alley. He sincerely believes that Fredric March and George Raft, whom he once instructed, might have made expert fighters. "But," says Saxby philosophically, "I guess they are happier now."

Tailor-made Plays

You never have read of Mish, the tailor. Mish runs his establishment in the Forties with the help of an errand boy. He caters almost exclusively to theatrical folk of that neighborhood and considers it an insult to be asked to work for non-professionals.

But Mish is not just a tailor. He writes plays as a sideline, has completed three to date. When he delivers a suit to a Teddy Hart, or a George Abbott, or a Sam Levene, he brings a script with him and leaves it for reading.

Nobody has yet accepted one, but Mish is still confident. He keeps telling friends that John Golden, Arthur Hopkins, and the Theatre Guild rejected Elmer Rice's "Street" keeps on groping for good curtain lines.

Mitty, Like Rose

Billy Rose's buffer and general handyman is a young fellow named "Danny." Few along the Broadway beat know Danny's second name, Danny was once Jed Harris' errand boy. When Harris became somewhat inactive as a producer, he got Danny a post with Billy Rose.

At a conservative estimate, Rose has fired Danny fifty times in the past ten years. But Danny still is around. He knows more of the midwest showman's affairs than does Rose, himself. He can duplicate Rose's signature to a T and signs much of his boss' mail.

Paul Whiteman once asked Rose about Danny and the latter answered: "I like having him around. He builds up my morale." We must explain that Danny is one of the few citizens along Broadway who is smaller than Rose.

Nothing like that was going to happen to him. So Saxby continued to make a living with his hands, by teaching others the art of self defense. Some of his early customers were Eddie Cantor, Sam Jaffe, Grant Mitchell, Lee Tracy, and Sime Silverman, late publisher of Variety, the actors' bible.

In New York
By George Ross

NEW YORK — The men and women of New York town whose names seldom appear in print often pack more human interest per square inch than any of the alleged celebrities.

Mitt Saxby, for instance, Saxby is a weather-beaten chap, on the portly side now. Every Broadwayite from 42nd Street to Columbus Circle calls him "The Kid."

Saxby, some years ago was a promising lightweight. But one day, for no apparent good reason, he "upped and quit." The truth was that Saxby had looked about him, counted the fighters walking on their heels and talking in that frighteningly incoherent manner of a man who has taken too many beating about the head.

Nothing like that was going to happen to him. So Saxby continued to make a living with his hands, by teaching others the art of self defense. Some of his early customers were Eddie Cantor, Sam Jaffe, Grant Mitchell, Lee Tracy, and Sime Silverman, late publisher of Variety, the actors' bible.

would be laughed at. Nobody look him seriously.

"But when Gaby Hartnett came in, no one was exactly sure what he'd do. After all, you got to thinking, 'Well, maybe Gaby will find me if I don't bear down,' Gaby gave the Cubs the psychological lift they needed to win."

Carlton doubts that Dizzy Dean will win 10 games. He wintered close to Diz in Texas.

There's a separation in his shoulder," explain Tex. "Every time he throws a ball it's like rubbing a muscle over sandpaper."

"To bad, too," concludes Carlton. "Baseball needs Ol' Diz's color. 'You reporter fellows know Ol' Diz would stand on his head to make a newspaper story.'"
